Learn about Your Punjabi-speaking Sikh Neighbors

Punjabis were some of the first immigrants from South Asia to the United States. Initially, Punjabis worked on farms, then lumber yards and on railroad construction. Many eventually became successful landowners and farmers. More recently, many have excelled in technology fields. For example, the cofounders of Hotmail and Sun Microsystems are both Punjabi. The University of California, Santa Cruz has a Sikh studies program.

The Sikhs worship in gurdwaras. Another function of every gurdwara is the Langar, a free community kitchen where people of all faiths are invited to share a vegetarian meal together. There are gurdwaras in the Bay Area cities of Livermore, Union City, San Mateo, Milpitas, Fremont, Santa Rosa, San Jose, Hayward, and Santa Clara.

Learn about Your Uyghur Muslim Neighbors

Most Uyghurs are from Xinjiang, a province in China. Today, Xinjiang is a police state. Over a million Uyghur are in internment camps, experiencing imprisonment and torture. Their children are forced to live at state-run boarding schools. Their language, culture and religion are being systematically abolished and they are being brainwashed to join the Communist Party. For these reasons, Uyghurs are attempting to flee, with some finding asylum in the United States.

Most Uyghur follow a kind of folk Islam. In the United States, local mosques are adopting them. There are various Christian resources for Uyghur in their language. Joshuaproject.net has links to Bibles, The Jesus Film, videos, and more information about the Uyghurs.

Learn about Your Nepalese Neighbors

Nepal is a multi-ethnic nation of 125 ethnic groups and 123 languages. It has the largest percent of Hindus in the world at 81.3%, and is 9% Buddhist, 4.4% Islam and just 1.4% Christian. However, Nepalese have been quite receptive to the gospel in recent years. While people of Hindu background are the most prevalent in the Bay Area, there are significant Theravada Buddhist groups from Nepal here, too, especially in the North Bay region. The US Census groups together Nepali, Marathi, and other Indic languages, but of this language grouping, most (we have informally discovered) are from Nepal. In 2019 there were 13,498 people over 5 years old classified as such in Santa Clara County, 6,133 in Alameda County, and 6,428 in Contra Costa.

Learn about Your Afghan Neighbors

Afghans are made up of a multitude of different people groups and tribes. The Kyrgyz have very little access to health care, markets, and schools. Due to harsh living conditions, they often turn to opium usage. The Baluch are tribal people who long for their own homeland. The Shugni and Wakhi are two small and remote people groups with little access to the gospel.

Afghanistan is 80% Sunni Muslim, 19% Shia Muslim, and just 1% anything else. The main difference between the Sunni and Shia is that Sunni Muslims rely on the Sunnah, a record of the teachings and sayings of Muhammad, while the Shiites rely more heavily on the teachings and edicts of their religious leaders, who they believe represent God (“Allah”) on earth.
